

DOG VOLUNTEER NEEDED

Researchers at the UW–Madison School of Veterinary Medicine and School of Medicine and Public Health are studying a new blood test that can detect cancer from DNA fragments in the bloodstream.

Your dog can help!

Dogs of any age & health status are welcome to participate.

Participation:

- One tube of blood

You will receive (at no cost):

- Free canine cancer blood test result with interpretation of the test by a board-certified veterinary medical oncologist

 Every sample helps advance early cancer detection for dogs.

The Canine Cancer Blood Test Team
UW–Madison School of Veterinary Medicine
Contact: cancerbt@vetmed.wisc.edu